This project should have given you many opportunities to think about and develop some possible answers to your questions. You should develop a greater appreciation for the amount of time and effort it takes to achieve the knowledge and the insights that lead to the discoveries in science. You should now have some insight into the most important question people ever ask which is: Why? Our ability to ask this question and to use the scientific method to explore possible answers to this question is what leads humanity on its ultimate journey.

Your conclusion should include:

- Topic sentence or hook
- Restate your question
- Whether or not the hypothesis was supported
- Explain your results using your data
- Include facts from background research to help explain your data
- The outcome of the investigation what did you learn?
- Suggest changes in the experiment (how to improve)
